INTRODUCTION

Inventory time! That is what the New Year means to many people, and we know of no better time to take note of our stock in store, whether materially or spiritually. Nearly all the world joins in some measure in this process. The Year Book partakes somewhat of the nature of an inventory of the work of the Church for the year that has passed. The articles which are presented are both retrospective and prospective. The work for the past year, or perhaps for a period of years, is reviewed; the work for the future is outlined, as nearly as that can be done with our limited knowledge of what God has in store for us. We should plan for the future, but let the disposition of these plans in the hand of Him who alone knows the things that lie before us. This is the spirit in which the writers set forth some of the things that we hope to do as a church in the year that is upon us.

We view the oncoming year with mingled feelings, depending somewhat on our experiences in the past, and our present station in life. To the youth the pace of Time seems all too slow; to those who are older it seems to hasten on its course with the swiftness of eagles' wings. But as laborers in God's vineyard we all agree that time is very precious, for "the night cometh when no man can work." Souls are being rushed into eternity, many without knowledge of God and salvation. Ours is the work to bring them that knowledge. On this fact hinges all the organized and unorganized work of the Church. Hence the value of taking an inventory of the work. Have we done all that we could or should have done? Can we profit by our experiences of the past whether pleasant or painful, whether successful or disappointing, whether joyful or sad, whether rewarded or unrecompensed? Certainly we can, and by God's grace we should. In all our experiences, however, let us remember that "all things work together for good to them that love God."

In another sense, however, we can say with Paul; "But this one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." The coming days are full of promise and blessing, we are sure, if we continue to be faithful in His service, prayerful in our lives, constant in our submission, and untiring in our labors for the cause.

We will not take time to call special attention to all the articles that are found herein. They speak for themselves, and are full of things that are informational, practical, and inspirational. We ask that you give them a careful reading.

Bro. Heatwole has again favored us with the compilation of The Calendar of Events. We trust that this will be found a helpful table for reference concerning important events that happened during the year. If your memory fails you when trying to recall some important church event, you will probably find it in this record.

The records of Conferences, Missions, Church boards, etc., as well as the list of bishops, ministers, and deacons, have been carefully revised. We thank all who have assisted in this work. Probably there is still some inaccuracies. Will you kindly report any that you may see?

"Not with forebodings sad,
But faith and good cheer,
We welcome to our hearts
Another year."

REVIEW OF OUR MISSION AND CHARITABLE WORK FOR THE YEAR

By S. C. Yoder

Each year we look back with some satisfaction as well as regrets over the work of the year that has passed. Satisfaction, because some of the things that we prayed and longed for were brought to pass, regrets because some of our plans had been imperfectly carried out while others failed to materialize at all. In this the past year has been similar to those that have gone before, and yet in many ways we feel encouraged and have reason to thank God for His wonderful work among us.

The Annual Meeting held at Harrisonburg, Va., was one of the most inspiring of its kind ever held. A large amount of business was transacted in the presence of large audiences that gathered for nearly every session. Excellent addresses were given by those to whom subjects had been assigned, all of which are printed in full in the Annual Report.

The Foreign work was given a new impetus by the return of Bro. M. C. Lehman and family to the field in India. In addition four new missionaries, Bro. and Sister Joseph Graber, and Sisters Minnie Kanagy and Ada Hartzler, were appointed at the Annual Meeting and sailed in November. Bro. J. N. Kauffman and family returned to America for their furloughs in time for the Annual Meeting. Brethren Ressler and Albrecht, who had been touring India during the winter also landed at New York during the Annual Meeting, but too late to attend same.

The work in South America was also strengthened by the addition of four new workers, who were sent out during the year. Early in January Bro. J. L. Rutt and wife of Lancaster Co., Pa., sailed. About September 5, Nelson Litwiller and family, of Ontario, followed. These are now on the field engaged in language study. Bro. T. K. Hershey, who had been at home on furlough, was most actively engaged in evangelistic work among the churches and in solicitation for the work in the southland. During the summer he was ordained to the office of bishop, and will be given charge of the churches in Argentina.

But the work has not all been confined to the foreign field. Early in the year a new church was dedicated at Kansas City where Bro. Rufus Horst was ordained to the ministry at the time of the dedication of the new building. From Portland, Oreg.; Chicago, Ill.; Ft. Wayne, Ind., and other places come reports that are encouraging. True there have been disappointments, but also victories that make the effort worth while.

One of the most far-reaching decisions of the Board was the sale of the La Junta Sanitarium. This institution was sold with a view of investing the funds in a General Hospital, which line of work was thought to be more in keeping with our needs, especially since it made possible a training school for nurses. Steps are now being taken toward the erection of a new hospital at La Junta, Colo., as soon as the finances can be provided for.

Several changes in superintendents at our City Missions were also made during the year. Bro. Otis Johns of Canton, was ordained to the office of bishop, which makes it necessary to relieve him of his charge at the Mission. Bro. C. C. King of Chicago, is his successor. Bro. Harnish and wife of Peoria found it necessary to go west last spring on account of Sister Harnish's health. In their obsence, Bro. Lloy Kniss and wife were called to the work at that station, and later, Bro. and Sister Earl Miller. The latter now have charge of the work while Bro. Kniss returned to Pennsylvania. While in the west Bro. Harnish rendered faithful service to the little congregation at Manitou, Colo.

Interest in the rural work is growing each year. At its last Annual Meeting the Mission Board passed a resolution asking that steps be taken to plant the Gospel on virgin soil. In the discussion that preceded this resolution the great field embracing the Southern Highlands of the United States was in the mind of the Board. Since then correspondence has been opened with other organizations with a view of getting information and facts which will enable the Board to proceed intelligently in making its plans. It is to be hoped that before many years pass by, the Mennonite Church may carry the banners of Christ into this field and win many souls for Him.

In response to the urgent appeal from the small colony in Mississippi the Board sent Bro. S. E. Allgyer to that state as well as to Louisiana and other points in the south to make investigations as to the feasibility of opening work under the supervision of the Board. His report indicates a great need for workers and splendid opportunities for service in those regions. May the Lord grant that those fields may be occupied.

Since the extension program of the Board is dependent upon the interest and response from the Church, the matter of finances is among one of the outstanding problems to be considered in making plans for the future. Every year we feel some progress in the way of an increasing interest. This has been notable during the past year and has made it possible for the Board to plan for the extension of the work both in India and South America. As more and more people become awake to the great opportunities they have of helping to advance the work by giving of means, we can expect the work to continue to grow. For all these benefits we are grateful to the Church and the Lord, and under His guidance the Board expects to continue to carry on the work.

OUR DUTIES TO OUR HOME CONGREGATIONS

By John W. Weaver

What a world of meaning to many of us is contained in the words, "Our home congregation." In the word "our" is implied the thought that we are a part of a particular thing or it is a part of something belonging to us. Hence, we see that this brings along with it the idea of individual responsibility. When we, who are now the members of any particular congregation, stop a moment in the hurry and "bustle" of this age, and think soberly, and meditate for a little while upon the blessings that we are enjoying, because of what our fathers and mothers have been, or have done, it should certainly then awaken within us tender memories, and strong desires to be to the rising generation what the past has been to us. Remember, we stand on the shoulders of the past; we are the link that unites the past to the future.

On the other hand, some of us are compelled to look back with a feeling of deep regret, because of the evidence that in some places some of us have not done our particular part in building up the home congregation, for hundreds of descendants of families who were connected with local congregations, have drifted away, and in many places, where they have not actually deserted the Church, have removed the "old landmarks."

Then there should be at once, a real heart-turning to God in earnest prayer, imploring divine grace to help us profit by past blunders, and ask

His Holy Spirit's guidance in helping us to apply ourselves in the building up of the home congregations.

When the Lord Jesus ascended into heaven He gave gifts unto men, among them the ministry, for the edifying of the saints and the strengthening of the body. He gave to each of His servants a work to do, yea, even "to every one his work." The standard of any congregation can never be higher than that which is upheld by the individuals of that congregation. The home church is in a very real sense a "home" where the saints meet together from time to time and where the blessed Word of Truth is expounded, where prayers are offered, where songs of praise and adoration are sung, where sweet fellowship is enjoyed, and where one often thinks of the hymn, "Blest be the Tie that Binds our Hearts in Christian Love." How important, therefore, that every member should endeavor to "strive for the things which make for peace," and the things that edify the body of Christ. The needs are many and varied, and in order that all of these may be supplied every one needs to be faithful in giving support to the home congregation, whether in a financial way, in faithful attendance at the services, or in many other ways that we could name. The measure of our support depends upon the faithfulness of the individual members.

In concentrating our efforts to build up any one particular congregation we would by no means encourage selfishness which would bring about estranged feelings between neighboring congregations, but we do emphasize the importance of active, aggressive, faithful work in the calling wherein one is called. In spreading out, in sending workers out, in an effort to build up neglected places, the home congregation has never become weaker, for also in this respect, "there is that scattereth, and yet increaseth."

In the pastoral work among the flock, visitation work which looks after the individual, there lies a mighty factor in edifying or building up the home congregation. Have you ever visited a strange congregation where no one shook hands with you, or particularly welcomed you? If so, did you feel as though you would like to go back again soon? The church certainly is more than a social center, but does not the friendly handshake, and a hearty "God bless you," and a real "I am glad to meet you; come again," carry with it a wonderful effect? Does it not make one feel like coming back? This is a mighty factor in building up a congregation—everybody taking an interest in everybody else.

Again, the home, the family, being really the nursery of the Church, it is of the highest importance that our homes should be loyal to the Church with the children brought up in an atmosphere of loyalty. Criticizing the ministry, the Sunday school workers, or any phase of the work of the Church, before the children is very harmful and should never be done. The children are the only hope of the future. The mother in the home has a wonderful charge given to her. Great opportunities to mold character for time and eternity lie before her. One of the most effective factors in building up any congregation is a united effort on the part of mothers to direct the young hearts and minds into right channels. When such efforts are strongly reinforced by consecrated fathers who seek to advance the cause of the Lord and teach the children in the homes the great principles of sacrifice, cross-bearing, and service, we may rightly expect the blessing of God upon our efforts. Not long ago some women met at a general store. Among them was a mother with a child by her side. She was asked whether she was going to the Women Voters'

League, which met in town that day. When she was told that she ought to attend, she replied, "I am going to buy a pair of shoes for my child, and buy some sugar, and then go home to can peaches. I have no time for such things as you describe." This mother had the right conception of what the Bible calls, "Keepers at home" (Tit. 2:5).

The Sunday school and young people's meeting are also very important helps in building up the home congregation. Whatever else we may name, in all the various departments of church activities, there should be a fullness of the Holy Spirit, a real earnestness, a hearty cooperation, a fully surrendered will, a consecrated service with an eye single to God's honor and glory, a high regard and respect for church discipline, and much time "alone with God" in prayer, and the blessings of heaven are sure.

AFTER SIX YEARS IN THE ARGENTINE

By T. K. Hershey

A Bit of History

August 16, 1917, the writer, wife, and two children, and Bro. J. W. Shank and wife, and two children, set sail from New York for Buenos Aires, Argentina, South America, arriving there September 11. Our plans were very indefinite, for there was no particular place designated where to begin work. The choosing of a location was left to us. The first essential thing however, was the acquiring of the language. Accordingly a house was rented in Buenos Aires where we lived until January, 1919. During the year and three months, besides having studied 65 lessons from one of the best Spanish grammars, and under good instructors, six long investigating trips were made by Bro. Shank and myself. The last one was made from Buenos Aires to Santa Rosa. From the many probable locations found, Pehuajo and its surrounding district proved to be the most favorable for the launching of mission work for the Mennonite Church.

Conditions as We Found Them

In this district, about 300 miles long by 60 miles wide, lived approximately 300,000 people, and no mission work had ever been carried on among them. It was difficult to find the Bible, and still more difficult to find those who understood its mesage. The Roman Catholic Church had full sway, superstition was especially noticeable; Protestants were looked upon as heretics, and there were no Christians as we understand the term. There was not a single mission station from Nueve de Julio to beyond the Andes Mountains, in Chili, perhaps 500 or 600 miles to the west. People lived, as many do yet, like animals. Sin and vice seemed to know no limit. In fact people lived as though there were no God, but the Virgin Mary. She revealed to the priest what she desired of her people, and he became the meditator between man and Mary whom they were supposed to obey. Yes, they did know there was a God, but did not know of His plan of salvation. Jesus was, and is yet for many, a dead Savior.

Actual Work and its Extension

Actual mission work began at Pehuajo in a rented hall April, 1919. The strange language, customs, habits, and people, made the work for the despised, intruding Protestant worker, no small task. During the first services, which were conducted continuously for nineteen evenings by a native of Spain, Juan Barrio, seven precious souls accepted the Gospel plan of salvation. Many became interested, and attended regularly. Some came out of curiosity and to see the Protestants. Others came to make fun and to break up our services.

The seven that God gave us at this time were baptized in October, two of whom became at once teachers in our Sunday school. All are teaching classes now, and they are the pillars of the church. Our native Bible readers have largely been from this first class.

The work continued to grow, and was extended to Trenque Lauquen, where Brother Shank and family moved in September, 1920, taking with them Sister Anita Cavadore, who was one of the seven converted in those first services at Pehaujo. This native sister was of untold service in helping to launch the work in Trenque Lauquen. Soon there was established a congregation at this place. It grew rapidly until today there are perhaps as many members there as at Pehuajo, for which we praise God.

In January, 1921, work was begun at Santa Rosa, with Brother and Sister Albano Luayza in charge, and in October, 1922, Brother and Sister William Lauver opened the work at Carlos Casares. Both these towns have flourishing congregations, in which are many noble Christians, and promising future workers.

In March, 1924 seven persons were baptized in Madero, where services are being held regularly by Brother Pablo Cavadore, assisted by other natives and missionaries.

In the last year or 1925, Brother Amos Swartzentruber launched the work in Tres Lomas, which promises to be a good field. The attendance at Sunday school and other services looks very favorable for a good work.

After Six Years

After six years the Mennonite Church in Argentina finds herself with a membership of 171, nine Sunday schools with an aggregate attendance of 22,984, with some 30 native teachers in them. Seven native Bible Readers made 4,037 visits in 1924 with an aggregate attendance of 7,377 hearers that listened to God's Word read. 153,837 pieces of literature, were distributed last year. They consisted of tracts, Gospels, Bibles, and portions of the Bibles. Six years ago, much of this literature would have been destroyed as soon as it was observed that it was Protestant literature. Six years ago our contributions were less than $4.00, last year they were something over $1000.00 U. S. currency. Besides all this there were nearly 500 public services held in the above district.

There are hundreds of homes today where the Bible is being read. Six years ago there were none. To many it is yet a closed book, while to others it is the most precious treasure in the world. Many Argentinians are breaking away from the Roman Catholic Church and are manifesting a deep spiritual hunger, and to satisfy this hunger, some take refuge in Spiritualism and Christian Science. There are those who six years ago knew something about Christ as their Savior and Leader; to-day they declare themselves in favor of the Protestant movement, but are not willing to unite with them.

To-day the missionary force takes great pleasure in seeing whole families converted. Homes have been changed from "a place to stay," to ideal Christians homes. In some, father, mother, and all the children old enough, are converted and members of the Church. The earnestness on the part of most of the members to live a clean, pure life is encouraging, to say the least. There are those, as one might expect, where the devil has had such a free hand, that do not remain true, and cause trouble in the Church, but on the whole, remembering the raw material from which they come, we think at times they could give an example of Christian living to many at home.

To-day, after six years, sympathy has been won, and the Protestants are not, to the same degree, looked upon as heretics, or a bad people. When help is needed, materially and spiritually, we are called upon, and the word of the Protestant to-day has weight. We are counselled with respect to many private and public affairs. Public sentiment in general is changing, and the Word of God is doing it. Our literature is not destroyed as it once was, but is read and often called for. More Bibles have been circulated this last year than any time in the history of the Mennonite Church in the Argentine.

With nearly 200 members; hundreds of young, spiritual, active and earnest native helpers, and much of the prejudice toward us removed, as well as a praying and a giving church at home, standing back of us, we prophesy for the Mennonite Church in Argentina, great things during the next six years. God has promised that His Word shall not return unto Him void. He has and will continue to bless, if we keep humble, and our forces work unitedly. Pray that the present church in this great country may remain pure, and that the next six years may find hundreds of others within her gates. Will you pray for the work in Argentina?

LIFE'S GREATEST JOY

Have you ever helped another?
Ever earned a grateful smile?
Ever asked a weary brother in
To ride with you a mile?
Have you ever given freely
Of your riches and your worth?
If you haven't, then you've really
Missed the greatest joy on earth.

ECHOES FROM GENERAL CONFERENCE HELD AT EUREKA, ILLINOIS, AUGUST, 1925

By Clayton F. Yake

For a number of years the desire had burned within us to attend some session of our General Conference but time, circumstances, and means did not sufficiently articulate until this past summer, when we were privileged to attend the General Conference held on the grounds of the Old People's Home at Eureka, Illinois. It seems to us that this desire should actuate every member of our Church, sometime or other at least. Members should have some idea of the working of the machinery that keeps the Church organization of which they claim to be a part, in running condition, and functioning properly for the cause of Christ. Many a one would get a better knowledge, of the Church as a whole, of the men who are responsible for directing her affairs, a better comprehension of the great tasks confronting her, and a greater vision of the needs in the various fields of her activity. We feel certain that no one will regret the time and effort expended in the attendance of a General Conference session.

It is rather remarkable, as one gets about from place to place, to find out just how much people know about the Church of which they are a part. Just by way of illustration we recall an interesting incident of a number of years ago. We were traveling east by train. We had not gone far until one member of our group learned of the presence of a young couple who appeared to be Mennonites. Later he made it his business to enter into conversation with them and found his conjecture was right. He then talked to them about the Church and asked them whether they knew such a person. They did not. He then mentioned the name of another prominent Church man, and they replied that they never heard his name. The little conversation revealed the fact that here were members of our faith that knew very little, beyond the confines of their home congregation, about the Church of which they were members. Attending a General Conference session will indeed help to remedy such a condition, though there are other means that may accomplish or help to accomplish the same.

Well, in giving echoes of our General Conference it would be impossible for the writer to do so without giving also some of the echoes that the laws of association bring ringing loudly into his soul. Some of the most beautifully sounding echoes now are the ones reverberating from incidents along the way to General Conference from Scottdale to Eureka by many times, as we gather about the board at home and the subject of conversation brings this trip to our mind, there are a dozen and more echoes ringing for admittance at one time. It is impossible for us to relate these here. They belong to Echoes of Life, for that is indeed what they are. But there are a few auto. These are quite numerous and of these echoes that bear on the subject particularly and have a rightful place here.

One of the most beautiful things that comes ringing into the chamber of our soul when we think about General Conference is the hospitality of the brotherhood. En route we enjoyed this immensely. It is one of the godly and distinctive characteristics of our people. They are indeed a fraternity, a brotherhood in Christ, and this spirit is manifested wherever you go. This spirit of hospitality was shown in a marvelous way by the people in the community of where the Conference was held, who cared for approximately 3000 people. It reminded us of the law of hospitality so faithfully observed by the Arabs of the east who will entertain any strangers who may stop at their tent, and show the best hospitality without asking any questions. But this hospitality was even better—it was the hospitality given in the spirit of Christ.

Then with this echo there is associated one so closely that is cannot easily be separated. Acquaintances! Yes, we met many old friends not seen for years; we learned to know many new ones; and we even found time to visit with some of our neighbors back home, where we are usually so busy that it doesn't happen. Well, this is one of the pleasant phases of a conference. It gives us an acquaintance with persons from all sections of this country and Canada, and with the mission fields in India and South America through the missionaries on furlough. This establishes a link that develops missionary interest and thus helps to foster missionary activity in the Church.

Again, the spirit of the General Conference session is one of the pleasant echoes that rings in our soul. The session was conducted with a spirit of cooperation and unity. Of course there were problems that required wrestling with, but there was no warring about these. The soldiers of the Lord were on the Lord's side and showed themselves so when it came to the solving of difficult problems. In the face of the general unrest throughout the religious world, it was indeed remarkable to notice the absence of just such a spirit, and the presence of the spirit of unity. It proved to us that the cause of Christ has yet many defenders, and though there may be many adversaries, His cause is certain to be victorious. One could not help but come away from the Conference with a feeling of inspiration.

And the results of this General Conference are sure to be far-reaching and enduring. The session of the Publication Board was quite inspiring. It was interesting to note the progress that has been made the last fifteen years in this line of work. The Board is progressive and yet conservative. The work was encouraged in all its various phases of propagating the Lord's Word, and the next few years will see constant advancements in this important activity of the Church. The literature question is one of the most pertinent of the day and needs to be studied by everybody.

The Fundamental Meetings held at the various churches in the community will long leave their impress upon the minds of those who heard the addresses. The Sunday school program was indeed an interesting one showing us the development of the Sunday school work in our Church, the effect of the Sunday school upon the lives of our young people, etc. The literature provided to meet the needs of our Church was comprehensively discussed to give the best information possible to the Church at large.

Some of the questions wrestled with in the General Conference session proper were: Should Conference appoint a committee on Church polity? What attitude should our Church take concerning cooperation with other denominations? What does Conference have to suggest to the churches concerning the stemming of the tide of worldliness? What attitude should the Church take toward the soldiers' bonus? Resolutions were passed on the first three questions but time did not permit the full deliberation of the fourth.

The writing of a new book on Church doctrine was authorized and Bro. Daniel Kauffman appointed editor. This work is now under preparation and is being rapidly pushed through. However, it will not be published until approved by next General Conference. This is an important contribution to our literature in the defense of the doctrines of orthodox Christianity.

The report on the new Church Hymnal, containing somewhere from 600 to 700 selections was presented by the committee in charge and passed upon by Conference. The manuscript is now in the hands of the Publishing Committee, and it seems very probable that this new song book will be off the press sometime this year.

The missionary spirit was not the least of the inspiring things emanating from the Conference. The echo of it will go on and on and on. Six new missionaries, four for India and two for South Americo, besides the missionaries on furlough from these fields, addressed the Conference at a workers' meeting. One could not help but feel the inspiration to do more for the Lord's work as the deep convictions were expressed by the recruits for the foreign fields, and by the presentation of the needs by the veterans from the field. We feel that these missionary echoes will continue to reverberate down the ages of time until the Lord shall come, and do much good for His cause.

Not one of the echoes that comes to us from this past Conference is an unpleasant one. All of them bring only pleasant and inspiring memories, and are the means of encouraging us in the Lord's work, and not us only, but all others, we believe, who were present and many more who were not, but who read about the work done there.

A FORWARD LOOK INTO OUR EDUCATIONAL WORK

By Paul Erb

This article is not an attempt at a prophecy. But it does in part express, I believe, the hopes and aims of those who are actively administering the educational work of the Church. If these hopes are the will of God, they can be realized in a Church which is yielded to His will. That they may be is the ardent prayer of the writer.

That the educational work of the Mennonite Church has a future can hardly be questioned. It is inconceivable that having come thus far, we should fail to go on and meet our educational obligations to our young people. We have already invested a large amount of money in the buildings, equipment, and endowments of our three institutions, which cannot be let go without a loss that we cannot afford. Moreover, the need for educational institutions will increase rather than decrease, for we may expect the standard of education everywhere to be raised, and there is no reason to expect that the tendencies of the education of the future will make church schools less necessary. On the contrary it seems probable that a church which wishes to remain separate from the world and to keep evangelical religion in its rightful place will be forced to control a considerable part of the education of her young people.

What are some of the lines of development which seem probable in our educational future? One is in the matter of finances. Our schools cannot charge sufficient tuition to meet their running expenses. If they did, only the rich in our Church, of which there are very few, could enjoy the advantages of an education. Our present method of meeting this deficit is, in large part, to collect from the churches each year sufficient funds for this purpose. This method of financing will no doubt be changed, for it is in several respects unsatisfactory. In the first place, there is nothing permanent about it. Each year the money is contributed and spent, and each year it must be done over again. Except in so far as we may consider the service of our schools worth what it costs, we must consider this method, as someone has said, pouring money into a hole. As a permanent solution of our problem it does nothing more than to keep our school plants in a serviceable condition. Again, this method is unsatisfactory because it is too strenuous and difficult. The man who must carry the responsibility of raising enough money every year to keep his institution from the financial rocks is headed for an early grave. And these men are usually of the type that the Church can ill afford to run through in this fashion. Soliciting money is for most people a disspiriting task, and to many of us being solicited is equally unpleasant. There ought to be some way to get this thing over with at least, to some extent.

That method is endowment, and to an endowment our schools certainly have the right to look forward. Not that their financial security should be absolutely assured. It would certainly be a ruinous thing to make our colleges so rich and independent that they would not constantly realize that their existence depends upon the good will and approval of the Church. It would be a great misfortune, both to the schools and to the Church, if it were no longer necessary to send out from the schools administrators who could keep the Church in touch with her institutions, and in turn feel the pulse of the congregation and discover their deepest longings in order to satisfy them. But such a financial security as will keep the colleges from tottering always on the verge of ruin we must have, and will have, I believe, as the Church gains confidence in the schools and becomes thoroughly awake to the situation. We are not rich, but we can always do what seems to be a necessary thing.

The goal toward which our colleges look forward is an endowment of $500,000. This money will be safely invested, and the income will be perpetually applied to the running expenses of the school, in accordance with the purpose for which the endowment was given. It is sometimes felt that so large an income ought not be necessary. It is true that these standards of financial resources are set by men who cannot believe that a man of $3000 ability will teach in a church college for $1500 or less. And I here wish to express my hope that conditions will always be such that the men and women on our faculties remain there at a large financial sacrifice. Otherwise it will be difficult to maintain the spiritual standards which we desire. A man who is in our colleges for money ought not to be there. If standardizing agencies force us to endow so heavily that we will have the money to pay liberal salaries, we had better keep them low and give the money back to the Church in the form of reduced tuition charges.

Another line of development to which we look forward is a greater cooperation among our various schools. This point has recently been receiving much stress, and rightfully so. We are certainly too small a denomination to succeed by building up rival camps. Only by a unified program will we reach the goal which we desire. There is perhaps no more fruitful cause of factions and disharmony in the Church than schools which are antagonistic, standing for different principles and ideals. No, let us pray earnestly for a system of schools which is thoroughly coordinated, schools whose courses of study are adapted, so far as that is practicable in the various states, to the needs of the others, schools whose faculties are thoroughly sympathetic, schools whose students are brethren and sisters, not rivals. All this depends on an identical loyalty to the principles of the Gospel as upheld by the Church. When we stand for the same things, and know that we do, we will have no antagonisms. It seems to me that as a means to a better understanding and cooperation the Mennonite Board of Education should have a Committee of Inter-school Relations which should deal actively with all questions which concern more than one school, such as the transfer of faculty members, or a common scale by which to determine teachers' salaries.

This leads me to another line of development which seems to many of us an acute need. This is a closer supervision and control of our schools by the Mennonite Board of Education. This Board is responsible to our General Conference for the school work done under it, and it should not hesitate to exercise its authority. It seems to me that the Board ought to take the same active, vigorous attitude toward the schools that the Mission Board does toward the institutions under it. If the schools are not just what the Church wants them to be, as it expresses itself through this representative body, then the Board should take immediate steps to right things. If the Board in a routine manner merely approves what the school men have decided, we can hardly look for that unity to which we look with longing. This will take much time and effort and acquaintance with the school problems, especially on the part of the Executive Committee, but the increasing importance of the school problem in the Church demands just that. The problem must be solved, and it will yield only to a definite and business-like attack. I am sure the schools themselves which are under the Board would more than welcome this attitude.

Needless to say, it is the deep desire of all who are responsible for our educational institutions that they may discover through the years to come means of making them of greater service to the Church. If they will not be for the advancement of the cause and the glory of our Lord, may they perish soon, but if God can use these schools to strengthen saints in the faith, and to win sinners to Christ and the Church, then may they prosper and grow. Let us all pray that our schools, the Eastern Mennonite School, Goshen College, and Hesston College and Bible School, may advance faithfully in the paths of service which seem to be opening up to them.

A REVIEW OF TWENTY-FIVE YEARS OF MISSION WORK IN INDIA

By J. N. Kaufman

The first missionaries of the American Mennonite Mission went to Dhamtari, C. P., India, under the auspices of the Mennonite Evangelizing and Benevolent Board—now the Mennonite Board of Missions and Charities—having been appointed at Elkhart, Indiana, November 4, 1898, and landed at Bombay, March 24, 1899. They were Bro. J. A. Ressler and Bro. (Dr.) and Sister W. B. Page. Their task before them was a responsible one and after considerable traveling and investigation they located at Dhamtari in the Central Provinces, the center of a needy field. This was on November 22, 1899. The field comprises an area of approximately 4,000 square miles with nearly three-quarters of a million people.

Our first missionaries came to India without any preconceived notions of the lines of missionary effort to be undertaken. Arriving as they did at the close of the famine of 1897, followed by another and more severe one in 1900, the nature of the work was easily determined. At the close of the terrible famine of 1900 they found on their hands two large orphanages, both of them at Sundarganj, the first mission station. The missionaries had no choice in the matter for the orphans must be fed, and clothed, and educated, and trained to work, and be given religious instruction. Their health must be looked after, and thus the opening of evangelistic, and educational, and industrial, and medical, as well as orphanage work, took place before they had much time to plan for these lines of mission work.

A large work could not long be maintained in the restricted quarters at Sundarganj, hence in 1903 a new station was opened at Rudri and the Girls' Orphanage was removed to that place from Sundarganj. By this move more room was available for the boys who remained at Sundarganj and both boys and girls were more easily cared for.

In 1905 another new station was opened at Balodgahan where opportunities for farming were made available to our young people. At the present time a considerable number of our Christian people are settled as farmers at Balodgahan, their holdings ranging from half an acre to forty acres each. Then followed in order the evangelistic station, Sankra, in 1910, Ghatula evangelistic station in 1916, and Mahodi evangelistic station in 1920. Medical work had been maintained from the beginning of the mission work at Dhamtari. The first medical work was in charge of Dr. Page, but it was necessary for him to return to America after only a short time in India and the work was carried on as best it could until the arrival of Dr. Esch in 1910. There are at present three missionary doctors on the field. The general hospital is located at Dhamtari while each of the other main stations maintains a medical dispensary where thousands of patients receive treatment for their ailments. Industrial work consists of agriculture, weaving, carpentry, and sewing. The industrial school, that is, the Mennonite Mission Carpentry School, is wholly supported by the Government and successful students receive a certificate as well as a free set of tools from the Government. The educational work takes pupils from the primary through the high school grades.

The Tree Underneath which Bro. Ressler and Bro. A. D. Wenger First Lived in an Improvised Hut

Leper work is also carried on. For some years a fine new asylum has been in the process of construction which when completed will be one of the best equipped and best located asylums in India. The work is financed by the Mission to Lepers which owns the property. The Government gives large grants-in-aid for the leper work. There are at present about 200 in the leper community, including children of lepers who are themselves untainted by the disease. It has been the rule in our Asylum that lepers who are admitted into the home desire baptism after a short time in the institution. These leper Christians are members of the Mennonite Church and constitute one of the seven Mennonite congregations in India.

Besides these main stations above mentioned there are six district primary schools and eleven subevangelistic stations. The work at these places is in direct charge of Indian Christian workers supervised by missionaries appointed by the Mission to that task. Exclusive of the Leper Asylum which belongs to the Mission to Lepers the church at home owns property in India to the amount of approximately $127,000.00.

The total number of missionaries sent forth by the Board to the work in India is 38. Of this number four have been called by the Heavenly Father to higher service. Others have been obliged to return to the homeland on account of ill health so that soon after the close of the first quarter of a century of mission work at Dhamtari and vicinity there are only 22 missionaries to take care of the work with four new workers just arrived on the field. The task in connection with the orphanages and the schools, together with the enormous opportunities, with evangelistic work, as well as the medical and leper work, are far beyond the strength of such a small force of workers.

The establishing of the Church was kept uppermost in the minds and plans of the missionaries. It was no easy matter to call out from among the ignorant, superstitious idol worshippers those who would carry on the the work of God in organized churches, but God was gracious and greatly blessed the work so that at the present time there has grown a brotherhood of about 1200 members worshiping in seven different congregations. The total Christian community is about two thousand. Up to date there are no ordained ministers, but there are seven ordained deacons, who take a large share in the responsibilities in connection with the Church. They take their turns in speaking in the regular services, preaching sermons that are an inspiration to even the missionaries. Three of the congregations worship in commodious new buildings. The leper congregation is soon to be provided with a new church while the Maradeo congregation worships in the schoolhouse and the Ghatula congregation worships in the Bible School chapel room. The Mahodi congregation is without a church building and should be provided with one as soon as possible.

The first conference convened at Bolodgahan in 1910 and annual conferences have been held ever since. The Indian Christian leaders have taken hold of the work in a very encouraging manner and without their help and cooperation it would have been very difficult to carry on the work of the Church. As the Indian church began to appreciate her responsibilities a desire grew to do more evangelistic work and as a result of this willingness two mission stations were opened and are maintained wholly by the India Mennonite Conference without any outside financial help.

Will you constantly remember the work in India in your prayers?

EXTENDING THE BORDERS

By Oscar Burkholder

Sometimes we allow ourselves to be blinded with the false idea that reaching out to save those who are outside our own environment, community, or nation, belongs only to the New Testament age. But this is not true, for Isaiah gives us a glimpse of the Lord's plan, when he breaks forth in his pleading with his own nation, the chosen race, "Enlarge the place of thy tent, and let them stretch forth the curtains of thine habitations: spare not, lengthen thy cords and strengthen thy stakes; For thou shalt break forth on thy right hand, and on the left; and thy seed shall inherit the Gentiles, and make the desolate cities to be inhabited." It has always been in God's redemption plan to save all men who will accept Him, for He is not willing that any should perish, but "commandeth all men everywhere to repent."

Seeing, then, that God intends His message for all peoples in all ages, in the dispensation that was closed with the advent of Christ at His birth, as well as in the dispensation since His advent, there are a few things we, as a church, must bear in mind, if we wish to fit into God's plan, and be instrumental in bringing the glad news of salvation to those who do not know it now. Not the least of these requirements is an absolute conviction that we know that "we have passed from death unto life."

A Church Convinced.—It is surprising, and perhaps after all not to some, that there are so many manifestations of indifference on every side. Very few of us are indifferent to material affairs. We are very sure that the occupation or profession in which we are engaged is worth while, providing it brings in the required returns. And when the returns are forthcoming, how valiantly we defend our plans and our methods in carrying out our plans. We are certain that the course we have pursued has been the right one, and that if others would do as we have done, they would experience similar results. But how different it is when we begin discussing plans for the salvation of our neighbors. So often there is no response at all, and, when there is, it is so faint that one wonders whether there is any strength left to do the work in which we so weakly profess to be interested. There are two things of which we must be absolutely sure if we would be enlisted among the representatives of Jesus Christ. The first is a salvation experience and then this is followed by a salvation message.

The reasons why that many professors are unable to bring the Gospel message to others is because they do not possess, in absolute certainty, the evidence of their own personal salvation. The message that ought to be proclaimed from every pulpit, and stressed over and over again, is the answer to the great question, "Do I know I am saved?" Without a doubt, if all professing Christians were absolutely sure that they are redeemed the resultant change in life would very markedly affect the topic of conversation, and our mouths would be filled with the great things the Lord has done for us, instead of the great things that we think we have done. Not until this absolute assurance is as clear as the noon-day sun are we ready and able to carry the salvation message to those who need it. One does not need to be surprised that many content themselves with other messages. It's the best they know, and in their lack of something better, they content themselves with scientific research, or geological discoveries, or popular lectures. There is some truth in these messages, but no man, when once he is really convinced of the greatest message, salvation for all men through Jesus' shed blood, as the only remedy for the ills of man, will content himself with messages that are known to-day as substitutes. Not only must the Church be convinced of her own salvation, but when convinced, she will be committed to the salvation message of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

A Church Committed.—A great deal of difficulty and uncertainty is directly due to our unwillingness to cut loose from everything that belongs to our former life of sin, and commit ourselves, unreservedly, to the great work to which the Church is called. "Ye cannot serve two masters," is just as true now as in the day when this truth was uttered. Either we are proclaiming the true message, or we are not. And when we are proclaiming the true message, we can proclaim it in a God-pleasing way only when we are committed to all that the proclamation of the message involves. How many tragedies have been enacted because of insincerity on the part of the message-bearer! The Master of men calls for sincere followers, and the only way in which we can be sincere is to be absolutely committed to Him, whose blood was shed for our redemption, and to His message which He proclaimed while on earth.

Commitment to the Savior's message involves a number of things that seem to be ignored by many, or, at least, very lightly esteemed. We are committed to the Savior's methods of reaching the lost. Men are advocating oratory, development of personality, social service, and many other methods, as the best way in which the sinner can be convinced of his need for a Savior. But the Savior did not so much as mention any of them as prime requisites for soul winning. He has shown us a better and a surer way—the way of humiliation, the way of self-obliteration, the way of the cross. And as Jesus beheld the cross ahead of Him He wept over Jerusalem, not because of their material poverty or prosperity, but because of their spiritual poverty, they "being dead in trespasses and sins." Jesus did not take the attitude that one prominent clergyman in the city of Toronto did very recently in commenting on nude dancing parties over the New year. He said, "They are only a passing episode and do not affect the onward march of spiritual progress." Jesus condemned sin wherever He found it, and knowing the hearts of men, He never missed the mark. The Church, knowing the methods of Jesus, of which there are many not mentioned in this article, will surely be filled with a great concern, not only for the brotherhood, but for the lost outside the gates.

A Church Concerned.—The Church must, in order to exist, be greatly concerned about the two great phases of her work upon earth. The one is the strengthening and encouraging of the saints, and the other is the gathering in of the unconcerned, the lost. Too long have we been possessed of the idea that saving the lost is the only mission of the Church. In its final analysis perhaps all the work of the Church can be summed up in this way. But there is a work that must precede soul winning, and unless this is accomplished, many unsaved will never experience salvation.

In a body of believers there usually are those who are hangers-on. Very often a comparative few shoulder the real work, and endure the heat of the day. The others say "I'm satisfied whichever way it goes," meaning that "as long as I need do nothing and can live as I please, I'll make no trouble in the Church." I am thoroughly convinced that if in any given congregation there are no more traitors than there were among the twelve disciples, that many who are now on the border lines would either become so uncomfortable that they would look for the nearest exit, or they would get right with God, and become fired with a great concern for the salvation of others. First be filled with a great burden and desire for the salvation of sinners before we attempt to lead them to Christ. There is no one who will recognize our unconcern more readily than the one who does not know the Lord. He knows how concerned he is about his interests in the world, and if we show the same measure of concern for the same things, how can we expect to convince him of his need of salvation? The church at Antioch, after much prayer and fasting, sent out Paul and Barnabas. The twentieth century church will never send out real soul winners in any other way. Being firmly convinced and committed, and then concerned, we are ready for the manifestation of the power of God, which is nothing more nor less than the cöoperation of God with man in the actual harvesting.

A Church Cöoperative. A redeemed son or daughter of God will not oppose God either in the message or the plans of God. "We are workers together with God," and since we know that God is not divided, but is the perfection of unity, it becomes us to adapt ourselves to Him, and not try to adapt Him nor His message to modern civilization. It must be Jesus Christ, and Him crucified, first, last and all the time. There dare be no swerving from this attitude towards our Master, and no turning away from this glorious relationship, if we wish to carry the message of redemption to the lost. There are two things, among many others, that are very healthy signs of such real cöoperation. The one is humility on the part of especially appointed church workers, such as preachers, evangelists and missionaries, and the other is a whole-hearted support on the part of the membership in standing under the arms of those who are out on the battle front. A humble minister ought always to be followed by loyal support.

There is a beautiful thought in Paul's message to the Romans when he asks them to "be kindly affectioned one to another, in honor prefering one another." He had learned the lesson and had practiced it throughout his life. Moses, the meekest man of his day, yet the greatest leader, had preceded Paul in the same kind of a life. Both men had been trained in ideals that were hostile to a service to God, yet when they opened their heart's door, and let the Savior come in, they were changed to men who renounced completely all worldly ideals and progress, and in Paul's language, "counted all things but loss" in their great overwhelming passion for their Lord and Master. No wonder they could lead others to safety. No wonder God could use them to His honor and glory, and for the welfare of men and women with whom they were permitted to labor. Is there not a great lesson here for the Church of to-day? Oh!

Christian worker! If you are not humble now, will you humble yourself at once at the feet of Jesus Christ, "who pleased not himself," but "endured the cross," and because He was willing to humble Himself, has given us the exalted relationship of sonship, joint-heirship with Him?

One more thought and we must close this message. There is nothing that will inspire a congregation to rise to real sacrifice as quickly and as surely as a humble leadership. Then, and then only, can there be real Christian co-operation. And there is nothing in the carrying out of God's salvation plan that will annul the seeds and spirit of division as quickly as a cooperative church. And when division is abolished, and in its place the spirit of humility given full sway, there is no telling, even in this twentieth century, how many may be persuaded to accept Christ, and from how many corners of the earth this multitude may be gathered.

OPPORTUNITIES FOR MISSION WORK IN THE CITIES

By Maurice O'Connell

There are opportunities on every hand in the city for mission work. I shall present this subject from my viewpoint, that of a member of a city mission. I cannot devote my entire time to the work, but with the opportunities that I have of helping in the work, I can see many open doors through which we can spread the Gospel.

First, we men who work in the shops have abundant material to work with. Sometimes we are the only Christians among four or five hundred men, with whom we come in contact every work day.

"You are the only church member in four or five hundred men?" you ask. No, there are church members among them, but they are such in name only. You might wonder how we know that they are not Christians. Let us talk to them and see what they believe concerning God's Word. The following is a typical answer:

"We believe a man can go to shows and dances, gamble, divorce his wife and marry as many more women as will consent to do so, belong to secret societies, drink a little moonshine once in a while, deny the divinity of Christ, and other Bible doctrines, just so he has his name on a church record—that is all that is required."

Are all these men church members? No, the majority do not belong to anything excepting unions, lodges, or clubs. Some claim that their lodges supply their spiritual needs. Can you see the large opportunities that are presented to us in giving our testimony to these blinded, misguided people? Come with me when the factory whistles blow at noon or evening. Thousands of people, both men and women, pour out of the doors, and we dare say that only one in a hundred knows Christ, and that is giving the sinner the edge. Stop, Look, Observe! Is there an opportunity for Christian labor in the shops? Yea, verily.

Now, I want you to come home with me and meet my neighbors. I used to live in a four-family flat. Are these neighbors all Christians? Of the eight or nine families that moved in and out of this one flat, only two families were Christian and these happened to be members of our own church. What about our next-door neighbors? Let us count the homes in this block and wherever there is a doubt give it to the Lord's side. There are twenty-seven homes, and I can honestly be sure of only four families as being Christians. These homes average five souls each —twenty out of one hundred and eight. Is there an opportunity here? There certainly is.

I have now introduced you to two places, where I work and where I live. How about the city as a whole?

We have a regular foreign section in the city. We have, apparently all nationalities. We have our slum districts and our poor sections. Just a short time ago we had opportunity to visit a number of homes of this class with our mission superintendent, and in each home found that they could not read. Do you know that we need Bible readers in the city to spread the Gospel to a dying world?

Now let me tell you what Satan has done and is doing in our city to ensnare people, young and old. There are on the list: twenty-five theatres which are jammed every night; ninety or more poolrooms and moonshine holdouts; ten or eleven parks, four of amusements; about twelve dance halls, and roadhouses on every road leading into the city.

And then we have in our city the kind of men Paul wrote about in II Tim. 3:13. We have to pray these men away from our very church doors. When you come to visit the city mission the work seems easy and the members enjoying Christian fellowship. Let me picture to you the scene. A church house 30 x 40. About eighty members, old people, young married couples, youths, and children. All seems peaceful, and it is, but each one of these souls has a story to tell you of how Christ wooed and won them from the world and Satan.

A Group at the Ft. Wayne Mission

Over there on the front bench is an old man, one of middle age, and a young man. At every service you will find them there. The old brother has worshiped God for scores of years, the young one about six years, (he was saved after he left the army) and the middle aged one about three years. Is this not an ideal picture—youth, middle-aged, and aged—sitting together and worshiping God? Over there is a brother who was saved from a drunkard's grave. Yes, I see two more who also were drunkards. As I look again I count nine who were hard drinkers. This is just a sample.

I can not stop to tell you of what each of the other eighty souls were saved from, but stop to see us some time and hear their testimonies. It will surprise you to hear what the Lord hath done.

Our city has a population of over 100,000 people. Are half of them saved? No. One-fourth? No. One-eighth? No. Not even one-twentieth. Say, brother, there is an opportunity of saving souls in a city mission.

OPPORTUNITIES FOR MISSION WORK IN THE RURAL FIELD

By Claude C. Culp

We refer to opportunities of telling lost souls of Jesus Christ who died to save them and bless their lives for time and eternity. It seems to me that to have the privilege of showing men and women the way to God should be appreciated and used by every Christian, because it was our Lord's parting message, that we should go to every creature.

It is true, there are opportunities everywhere—in city and country, in old established congregations, and in the new and smaller places, in fact, where only one unsaved soul is, there is an opportunity to do mission work.

In the communities around the older and larger Mennonite churches there are many unsaved people, but it seems to me that in the distinct rural field as found in Indiana-Michigan Conference district the proportion of unsaved people and false cults is much larger, and it therefore presents many and great opportunities of doing mission work.

The writer has often noticed opportunities for witnessing to the Truth in private conversation with others while at work, or when in the village, or at sales, or in visitation work, or even in a business transaction, when people will put forth some strange doctrine or idea, and you have the privilege of correcting the error in a kind and Christ-like manner.

Our personal experiences have been many and varied; a few may be cited: One man told me that he never was very bad and that he would pull through some way. Another said that he had a feeling that he would not be sick, but go in an instant when he died. Another blasphemes the Church at almost every sale; another lays claim to heaven because years ago he confessed but never united with any church, does not even attend and swears, desecrates the Sabbath, and is otherwise inconsistent for a child of God. Another is a disbeliever altogether. One lady after I had bought some pullets on Friday evening said that I should come Sunday to get them, as Saturday was her rest day. There are other instances that we could give, but these are enough to show that we do not need to hunt every day for a chance to do good to others. Every one of these instances is a challenge to show them the right way of life. True, you can not always do it on the spur of the moment, but they come to us and we should be willing to let such conditions burden our hearts for the salvation of the lost. The people I referred to nearly all oppose or resist the truth, but they are not all that way. Just recently one of our members told us that a lady told her, "I wish I could be a member of your Church." I do not know the motive of her wish, but, to say the least, it is an opportunity, and she has a soul to save. I am glad to say that the opportunity was used.

We firmly believe God's methods in Church work are always best, so we do not resort to the entertaining method of getting people to attend our services. I will admit we do not have as large crowds as some churches, yet when they come here I know they are after truth. Our methods are few and simple: Expounding the Word; Sunday school; evangelistic meetings; Bible conferences; visitation; sending tracts; personal work; living true, and asking God's blessing on His work; also in preaching funeral sermons we earnestly ask for wisdom to know what line of truth to bring to hungry souls, so that appropriate food may be given to warn or comfort, as is needed.

Conditions vary and so may methods, but those nearest the apostolic ways are most used of God to save souls.

Not all respond alike, some wait to see how the new converts turn out, while others object to some ordinances; others are afraid they can not hold out, etc. One man was so embittered against us that one day when we met on the road he remarked, "Some preacher!" But with all the experiences, pleasant or unpleasant, we must labor on, for is He not faithful that promised, "Forasmuch as ye know that your labor is not in vain in the Lord?" If that were the only promise in all the Word it would be enough to satisfy but He says further, "Ye shall reap in due season if ye faint not." I am afraid too many "faint" before the "due season" arrives.

As we look about we cry out, "Truly the harvest is plenteous, but the laborers are few." Won't you who read these lines allow God to use you in the place He wants you? You have given your soul to God for salvation; now give Him your life for service.

I often think of the larger churches where there are so many workers that there are not enough offices to go around and wish some of those same Christians would move out and help the smaller and more needy places. Sometimes when I tell this wish, then I am asked right away: "How are the markets, what are the crops, and can you make a living?" etc., always the financial side first,—what about the souls of men? Is not that to be considered first? Then trust the Lord to supply the need as it may arise, in the meantime doing what you can, of course, to feed and clothe yourself, but make spiritual matters first.

Will you respond to that conviction down deep in your heart and be willing to be used of the Lord for the saving of souls?

HOLDING OUR YOUNG PEOPLE

By Chester K. Lehman

The Church has a great responsibility toward her young people. It is a manifest task, which, if neglected in one or more ways, results in great loss. Thoughtful observation of at least four stern facts will disclose the task and impress the responsibility:

1. A large number of young people are admitted into the Church without having had a real experience with Christ.

2. In many communities sound standards among our young people are questionable, even grossly immoral, these conditions being unknown in most cases to parents and ministers.

3. The secular high schools are gradually weaning our young people away from the Church, or carrying the Church into the world.

4. The exodus of large numbers of young people from the farm to a city occupation means a change of environment for one that is distinctly bad, and for which they are unprepared and unsafeguarded.

Whether we like to hear it or not, almost every Mennonite community pays its yearly toll of precious and talented young people—lost to the Church and to Christ. Over and over one hears or observes the sad story of a son or daughter growing cold to the Church through external influences, and in the course of a few years drifting completely into the world. The total number of such losses to our Church for one year would number several hundreds.

The following is a typical story: Son goes to town for work—forms associates—begins to join their company in the evening—secretly begins to attend movies—with pricking conscience begins to frequent poolrooms and other places of evil—friendship with old comrades wanes—loses interest in Church and Sunday school—chooses life partner from town associates—leaves the Church—is lost for time and perhaps for eternity.

It is high time that the Church becomes aware of this terrible loss and uses every means to hold her youth. To the home, the Church, the Church school, and finally the young people themselves, appeal must be made to assist in this all-important task. In each of these there is unique strength.

There is the home with its home ties of love, fellowship, sympathy, and encouragement; its godly parents exerting wholesome teaching, training, and discipline; and its children who by nature are teachable, pliable, and susceptible to discipline.

There is the Church and her auxiliaries—the Sunday school and young people's meeting—which furnish pastoral care and discipline, religious teaching, Christian fellowship, and wholesome activity. Worthy of special mention is the Church school which, in addition, to supplying a Christian education, is adapted to solving the problems of youth.

Finally, the young man and young woman, each bears a responsibility to safeguard his or her own soul. If all four of these agencies work unitedly, we have every assurance for success in our task.

I desire to call attention to four means at our command which are potent for holding young people:

1. By means of teaching. Parents, ministers, and young people, are we aware of how many evils arise through lack of teaching? How many young people are in the Church who do not know some of the simplest and yet fundamental things pertaining to their salvation such as repentance, the new birth, conversion, salvation by faith through grace, the work of the Holy Spirit in sanctification, the prayer-headcovering, Christian assurance, etc.! How many social sins are committed through ignorance! It is not infrequent that young people allow themselves to fall into gross sin on the grounds of a heinously wrong interpretation of I Cor. 7:36. Boys and girls need private instruction to safeguard them against secret sin which impairs them physically, mentally, and spiritually.

Hear the words of Scripture on the use and importance of teaching: "And ye shall teach them your children.... .....and thou shalt write them upon the door posts of thine house" (Deut. 11:19, 20); "Train up a child in the way he should go: and when he is old he will not depart from it" (Prov. 22:6). David's prayer was, "Teach me thy way, O Lord" (Psa. 27:11). Isaiah spoke of God, "He will teach us his ways" (Isa. 2:3). Of Jesus the Scripture says, "He opened his mouth and taught them saying," etc. Matt. 5:2.

2. By means of wholesome activities. Youthful energy will have its escape whether in legitimate activity or not. It profits little to forbid young people from attending movies and theaters, from participating in parties and questionable social gathings, etc., unless sufficient wholesome activities be afforded in their place. How about substituting Bible and mission study classes, mission Sunday schools, and visitation work? These are wholesome Christian activities which, in addition to the good that is done, afford social intermingling of a very high order. If parents and ministers lead the work, I am confident that the young people will respond. A Bible or mission study class needs a teacher who will take time to make the work profitable and let me emphasize that young people will not become absorbed in a meeting of this kind unless someone spends much time and prayer in preparation for conducting the meeting. But I am certain that in this way some of our wayward young people will be weaned from a worldly gathering to one that is highly profitable.

A word concerning mission Sunday schools and visitation work. Because your community is well supplied with Sunday schools is no proof that there is not within a ten-mile radius some nook where twenty-five or more children who do not have Sunday school privileges, can be gathered together. Surely this number is worthwhile, is it not? Some Sunday make a tour of inspection of your community, covering a circle ten miles in radius, and your eyes will be opened. A great need of Sunday schools! Enough to employ all and perhaps more young people than your Church can supply! Foreign missions offer no greater field of service nor such an economical way of serving than this work lying at our doors. Each congregation should be the starting point of several bands of workers to conduct the work just mentioned and also prayer meetings in neglected homes. Within a five-mile radius of the Church may be fifty homes whose occupants do not attend Church. Take the service to them.

How shall we hold our young people? Give them work to do. Do not expect them to lead off in this work. They are afraid of being accused of desiring to be preachers—an accusation while true in some instances, in more cases it has quenched the Holy Spirit's work in a young person's life. Ministers, direct the work and your young people will respond.

But this does not cover the range of social activities proper. If parties, social gatherings, young people's societies, literary societies, etc., are detrimental, purge them of objectionable features, or supply a new activity that is not objectionable. Right on this point much might be written. Indeed, it is a difficult problem. I have a plea to make of parents and ministers in behalf of those whom we would save for the Church. Ask permission to attend the social gatherings or literaries of your young people. In a kind, fatherly way strike out all the objectionable features and then suggest profitable substitutes. If the games they are playing are sinful or questionable, put in their place a good game if such can be found, or something in which it is consistent for Christians to participate. In a Sunday school meeting or Church Conference discuss social activities that are proper for those professing godliness. The young people will appreciate the interest manifested in their behalf, and will modify their activities if suggestions come out of a truly sympathetic heart.

3. By sympathetic and firm discipline. The army accomplishes an almost unbelievable task. It will take men from their homes and loved ones and make them gamble with death—without complaint. It is accomplished by discipline of the most rigid kind. The home, the Church, the Church school, the individual—each has its distinct sphere of control. Strict discipline holds while laxness breeds discontent and lawlessness. It is better to have fewer regulations, which are carried out, than to have many that are ignored.

Discipline should be such as to develop self-control, that is, to do right for the sake of what is right. A multiplicity of rules leads one to consult them with reference to an act rather than to decide the questions on the basis of what is right or wrong. Discipline should stimulate conscientiousness. This is especially true as the child develops to maturity. A child cannot see the ethical principle involved, but as its moral nature awakens the choice of actions should pass from obedience to specific rules to that of the ethical principles involved. It is thus that we have been created, i. e., free moral agents. If this nature is not developed by the right kind of discipline, adults will still be children so far as their ethical life is concerned. Every new form of error will have to be hedged off with a rule. If a conscience, which tries to perceive the right and the wrong before any regulation is passed, were developed instead, there would be a sharper line marking off the Christian from the worldling.

4. By means of personal work. Young people crave for personal interest manifested in them. The world is opening up to them and in their lives many problems are arising which need solution. Only to a confidential friend will these problems be divulged. While sermons, Sunday school lessons and class room recitations play their part in moulding lives, it takes the personal touch of a sympathetic friend to guide the course of a youth facing life's problems. A wayward youth may be compelled to obey a rule of discipline but he is won by long hours of personal interview. Often it is only by this means that a youth climbing "fool's hill" is saved.

The power of personal work can be sufficiently illustrated by one incident in the life of Christ. The woman of Samaria whom He met at the well was a wretched sinner, shut up even against extending a courtesy to strangers. But Jesus breaks down this wall of prejudice, pierces her heart of stone, shows the real need of her soul, and lifts her thought to Himself. She is conquered. In the same manner, with adaptations to suit each individual case, the hearts of young people are reached, are brought to a real experience with Christ, are safeguarded from evil, and are directed to larger service in the Master's vineyard. My fellow Christian workers, let us covet the gift of working personally with those needing help.

How shall we hold our young people? Through united effort on the part of parents, teachers, church workers, preachers, and the young people themselves; by means of teaching, supervised social activities, discipline, and personal work.

A RETROSPECT ON MENNONITE HISTORY

On the occasion of the quadricentennial Mennonite conference in Basel, Switzerland, June 13, 1925, Pastor Gustav Benz, of the Reformed Church, gave a noteworthy address on Mennonite history. Following is a transcription of a part of it.—J. H.

As you, to-day, pause to take a retrospective view over the four hundred years of Mennonite History, your hearts are evidently filled with fervent gratitude toward the Father in heaven. Your history is indeed a thrilling witness of the Lord's abundant grace and faithfulness. I would mention two points in particular by which this fact is set forth in a specially clear light.

At the time of their first organization, and then again in the first half of the seventeenth century, the Mennonite congregations and their leaders were subjected to unheard of cruel persecutions. But God's grace did not depart from them. They were "persecuted but not forsaken, cast down but not destroyed;" they were "bearing about in their body the dying of the Lord Jesus," and for this reason the life of Jesus could be made manifest in them (II Cor. 4:9, 10). To sing (with one of the great reformers):

"Let goods and kindred go,
This mortal life also,
The body they may kill,
God's truth abideth still,
His kingdom is forever,"

is easy while you enjoy the protection of the "powers that be," but to actually experience this, as these people did, is a different matter.

They suffered not in vain. The time of persecution was a time of testing and refining for the Mennonite congregations. It proved for them a time of blessing. I would like to call attention to a noteworthy feature of Christian living in which the Mennonites, by God's grace, were faithful and which made them an example for the whole of evangelical Christendom. I refer to the faculty of bearing persecution in Christian submission, of enduring violence without yielding to the temptation of "paying back in the same coin;" the power of meeting evil, not with violence but with forgiveness.

The other point in which, in taking a retrospect of your history, you may clearly recognize God's gracious leading, is this, that the Mennonite congregations, through all the changeful history of four centuries, have maintained their identity despite their principle of separation of church and state and in the absence of an elaborate ecclesiastical organization. It was the power of a living faith, of true brotherly love and charity, of quiet, trusting patience and of a peaceful, godly walk as followers of the Lord Jesus. Truly it was a God-given blessing which carried these congregations through all the difficulties. And it was precisely this very circumstance which made the Mennonite congregations an example for the Protestant world. Just now in our national churches one of the burning problems is, What may be done to awaken true Christian life in our congregations?

We are grateful to God that your congregations, for four hundred years, have quietly done a great work in the way of true Christian influence in the midst of our people, and we pray God that He may further use and bless you in His service.

LIFE

Let me but live my life from year to year
With forward face and unreluctant soul;
Not hastening to nor turning from the goal;
Not mourning for the things that disappear
In the dim past, nor holding back in fear
From what the future veils; but with a whole
And happy heart, that pays its toll
To youth and age, and travels on with cheer.

So let the way wind up the hill or down,
Through rough or smooth, the journey will be joy;
Still seeking what I sought when but a boy:
New friendship, high adventure, and a crown;
I shall grow old, but never lose life's zest,
Because the road's last turn will be the best.

—Henry Van Dyke.

THE PERSECUTION OF THE EARLY MENNONITES

By John Horsch

The persecution of the Swiss brethren began in Zurich. In fact, the order of the magistrates to have all infants baptized was a mild form of persecution. Imprisonment followed and within a short time the persistent Brethren were suffering in the vilest dungeons. Their first martyr at Zurich was Felix Mantz, who was executed by drowning in the Limmat river on January 5, 1527. When the executioner took him on the boat, a minister of the state church once more admonished him to recant, and save his life, but his mother, who was present, encouraged him to be faithful unto death. "He lifted up his ardent soul unto God whom he had served," says an old chronicler, "and prayed aloud in Latin, 'Lord, into thy hands I commend my spirit.'" Having said these words, he was thrust from the boat and the waves of the Limmat dashed over him.

George Blaurock at the same time was given a severe sentence. As a foreigner he was beaten on the naked back until the blood flowed, and then exiled. Conrad Grebel had died in prison at Mayenfeld. Michael Sattler suffered martyrdom within a short time. He was, after the most terrible torture, burned at the stake in Rottenburg in modern Wurtemberg, on May 21, 1527.

Although Zwingli, as well as Luther, demanded that the Roman Catholics tolerate and protect his followers, both reformers refused to tolerate the Anabaptists. Church and state were united in every state and only the adherents of the state church enjoyed toleration. All dissenters were severely persecuted.

Thousands were put to death for their faith in Zwinglian and Lutheran as well as in the Roman Catholic states. But in spite of the persecution the movement continued to spread steadily for a number of years.

When all efforts to put down the movement proved vain, the authorities resorted to desperate measures to save the state religion from the danger that was threatening it. Armed hangmen were sent in companies through the land to hunt up the Anabaptists and kill them on the spot without trial or sentence. The old way of pronouncing death over each individual dissenter proved inadequate to root out this faith. It will be remembered that the name "Protestant" dates from the Diet of Speier which was held in April of the year 1529. (The diet, or reichstag, was the assembly of the representatives of the German Empire.) Here the followers of Luther and Zwingli protested against certain measures that were to be enacted against the new non-Catholic state churches. Hence they were called Protestants. But these same Protestants gave their consent to a new law passed by the same Diet demanding that "every Anabaptist and rebaptized person of either sex shall be put to death by fire, sword, or otherwise, without any previous trial." Thus the sentence of death was summarily passed upon all Anabaptists. It has been said that such severity is to be explained in the light of the fact that there was among the Anabaptists a class which were guilty of uproar and sedition. Those who make this assertion overlook the fact that the said class rose at a later date, years after this law was passed.

The most heroic examples of primitive Christian martyrdom were repeated in this persecution. To be a candidate for baptism in those days meant to be in dead earnest in the determination to serve the Lord and to stand on no other foundation than God's Word. Baptism was looked upon, as in apostolic times, as a solemn vow to renounce the world and to be fully consecrated to the service of God. The arguments which were advanced by the executioners by means of fire and sword to convert them, failed to bring conviction to the Brethren.

The courage, fortitude and patience with which these people suffered martyrdom were admired even by some of their most bitter enemies. The masses were impressed by the fact that they were in real earnest in living up to the light which they had received. When Michael Hassel, after much suffering, died in the tower of Hohenwittling, the warden said: "If this man did not get to heaven, I shall despair of the courage to knock at heaven's gate." The hangman of Burghausen, having beheaded three Brethren, exclaimed: "I should rather have executed thirty thieves than these men. God have mercy!" Often the hangmen begged them to recant and save their lives. The executioners in many instances expressed their regret for being obliged to put them to death. Instead of recanting the martyrs praised God on the scaffold or at the stake that He had given them grace to stand by His truth even to the end. They died as Christian heroes in the triumph of the faith.

One of the old chroniclers of the Brethren says: "Some were torn to pieces on the rack, some were burned to ashes and powder, some were roasted on pillars, some were torn with red-hot pincers, some were shut up in houses and burned, some were hanged on trees, some were executed with the sword, some were plunged into water. Many had gags put into their mouths so that they could not speak and were thus led away to death. Like sheep and lambs crowds of them were led away to be slaughtered. Others were starved or allowed to rot in noisome prisons. Many had holes burned through their cheeks. The others who escaped all this were chased from one land to the other, from one place to the other. Like owls and bitterns they dared not go abroad by day, but lived and hid themselves in rocks and caverns in wild forests, in caves and pits of the earth."

The leading theologians of the state churches held that the Brethren who permitted themselves to be put to death were hardened by the evil one to suffer for their supposed heresies. The thought that persecution itself might be due to Satanic influence apparently did not occur to them. The old Moravian chronicler, on the other hand, was of different opinion; he has the following to say of the martyrs: "They have drunk of the water which is flowing from God's sanctuary, yea of the water of life. They have realized that God helped them to bear the cross and to overcome the bitterness of death. The fire of God burned within them. Their tent had been pitched not here upon earth, but in eternity, and of their faith they had a foundation and assurance. Their faith blossomed like a lily, their loyalty as a rose, their piety and candor as the flower of the garden of God. The angel of the Lord battled for them that they could not be deprived of the helmet of salvation. They had heard the sound of the trumpet of Zion and had well understood it. Therefore they have borne all torture and agony without fear. The things of this world they counted in their holy mind only as shadows, having the assurance of greater things. They were thus drawn unto God that they knew nothing, sought nothing, desired nothing, loved nothing but God alone. Therefore they had more patience in their sufferings than their enemies in tormenting them." "My body," said one of the martyrs under torture, "is yours; you can burn, tear and lacerate it as you desire. But my soul is free from all torment; it overflows with joy through the inward consolation with which the Lord fills me."

For years this unprecedented persecution continued, thousands of consecrated Christian men and women being put to death in the name of God and of the holy Christian Church. By the year 1530 (about six years before Menno Simons identified himself with the Brethren) the movement had been crushed down, but the persecutors found themselves powerless to annihilate it fully. Those who had succeeded in escaping with their lives, could hold their meetings only at night, in lonely places, in the mountains and forests. In these gatherings they heard the news of the sufferings and martyrdom of their brethren. They read, besides the Word of God, the letters of encouragement which had been written in prisons and were circulated in many copies. They sang the hymns which some of the martyrs had composed in their prison cells. They encouraged each other to continue in suffering with Christ, rather than to profess adherence to principles which they knew were contrary to the teachings of Christ and the apostles. They spoke of the glorious reward of faithfulness. They prayed fervently for grace to bear patiently these short afflictions, according to Christ's example. They seldom departed without observing the ordinance of "showing forth the Lord's death," which was looked upon as a renewal of the baptismal vow—to follow Christ and Him alone, regardless of what the cost may be.

Oftentimes the persecutors succeeded in obtaining information concerning such meetings. This was at times accomplished through some "Judas" who, in order to get admittance into the Brethren circle pretended to be under conviction and desirous of leading a new life and of being baptized—only to betray them for money. Not unfrequently Anabaptists fell into the hands of the persecutors in this wise. The masses of the people, however, were in many places in sympathy with them. Oftentimes they were warned of approaching danger even by those who had been sent to arrest them. In spite of all threats of the authorities, they were secretly given food and shelter.

The blood of the martyrs was not shed in vain. Their cause triumphed. Never was failure so great as the attempt to substitute the authority of the state and of the state church for the authority of the Scriptures. These noble Christian men and women were right in their belief that every martyrdom meant a victory for the cause. You, reader, and I, are to-day reaping the fruit of the seed which they have sown in tears. May we remind ourselves of the fact that if we are Christians, we are made of the same stuff as the martyrs; we, as well, will be ready for self-denial and sacrifice. With them, we will consider it the purpose of our life to take a decided stand against the Modernist denial of the faith, and to serve God and His cause at whatever cost.

Leonard Schiemer, who suffered martyrdom January 14, 1528, at Rottenberg in the Tyrol, describes the prevailing state of things as follows (translation from the German by Dr. Henry S. Burrage):

Thine holy place they have destroyed,
Thine altars overthrown,
And reaching forth their bloody hands,
Have foully slain Thine own.
And we alone, a little flock,
The few who still remain,
Are exiles wandering through the land
In sorrow and in shame.

We are, alas, like scattered sheep,
The shepherd not in sight,
Each far away from home and hearth,
And, like the birds of night
That hide away in rocky clefts,
We have our rocky hold,
Yet, near at hand, as for the birds,
There waits the hunter bold.

We wander in the forests dark,
With dogs upon our track:
And like the captive silent lamb,
Men bring us, prisoners, back.
They point to us amid the throng,
And with their taunts offend;
And long to let the sharpened ax
On heretics descend.

THE PRESENT STATUS OF OUR RELIEF AND COLONIZATION WORK

By Levi Mumaw

Comparing our present relief activities with those of two or three years ago, we conclude that our work in lines of relief is very limited. This is not because of any indifference but because of improved conditions throughout the world. Our assistance at the present time is directed to Russia, Germany, and the Near East. There is also a limited amount of relief going to unfortunate immigrants of Russian Mennonites now in Mexico.

The greater portion of relief in Russia is given in reconstruction work and in Siberia in the form of food for work done on looms and spinning wheels. This work, however, is being closed and instructions have been given to close the Moscow office as soon as the unfinished business in connection with the work can be balanced up. A full report of the work done in Russia and Siberia will be published in book form as soon as the final arrangements have been made and the Moscow records are returned to us.

The work in Germany has been limited to the distribution of clothing to the neediest in some of the larger cities and the distribution of small sums of money which had been contributed and appropriated for that purpose.

The work in the Near East continues as in the past and centers about the work of orphanages where large numbers of helpless orphans are being cared for and trained for usefulness in life. The needs in this work will continue for a number of years even under present conditions. In the past few years the work has been increased through the deportation of large numbers of Armenians and Greeks from Turkey to Greece.

The relief given in Mexico is confined to several colonies where the new Russian arrivals were unable to raise enough food for their needs and are now looking for other locations where conditions are more favorable to their old community life and the raising of crops for the support of themselves and families.

The colonization work is centered largely in Canada. According to recent reports more than 10,000 Mennonites have reached that country since the work was begun several years ago and several thousand more are expected before the return of Spring. About 400 have found their way to Mexico, and additional small groups are on the way.

The Canadian Board of Colonization has directed the work in Canada while the Mennonite Board of Colonization of the United States has been taking care of the work in Mexico.

The present problem of the Canadian Board is to find employment and homes for the new arrivals. I believe it is generally known that as the immigrants reach Canada they are apportioned out to the several Mennonite communities and there being cared for by providing home and food in the homes until a suitable place can be secured for their permanent or temporary location. In many cases and in probably the greater number of instances, homes that were opened for this purpose, supported the family which they befriended during the entire winter or longer. This in many cases is repeated as places are found and new arrivals need shelter and care.

The first problem of the immigrant is to repay the passage money from Russia to Canada which has been charged to them through the special arrangement by the Canadian Board with the Canadian Pacific Railway officials, unless as in some cases, where they have had enough money to pay cash for the passage.

Closely related to the first problem is the question of location and the opportunity for employment. This latter question is easily solved in thickly settled communities in years of good crops and harvests. But the greatest concern of the new arrival is to find a permanent home. It is estimated that about two thirds of the number now in Canada have found permanent homes, some in rented homes, others on rented farms. A certain portion are on improved lands bought on the Canadian crop payment plan. Reports have been given where a number of families took improved farms on this plan and were able to pay all of their passage debts and are on a fair way to pay for their farms. The success of this movement depends of course on the season and the thrift and energy of the parties concerned.

Instances have been related by persons who are known to the writer, where such families have taken charge of farms and on their first payment have paid a very substantial amount of their debt.

There is a movement on foot at this time for the emigration of certain branches of Mennonites in Canada to Paraguay, South America, their purpose for emigration being largely for reasons peculiar to their beliefs and practices. In their removal to another country, their homes in Canada are open to the new arrivals from Russia. In this connection, however, the matter of finances plays an important part. It will be remembered that the emigrants from Russia are without money or chattels while the outgoing groups will need to have money for their present holdings to be able to buy lands, etc., in Paraguay.

In order to meet this need, a certain organization has been effected and sponsored by a reputable banking house in Philadelphia, Stroud and Company. The name of the new organization is The Intercontinental Co., Ltd., with offices at Winnipeg, Man. The object of this organization is to aid the outgoing groups of Mennonites from Canada to Paraguay and in the course of their work, they have about ready a project to finance and make it possible for the new Russian Mennonites to buy their homes on the crop paying plan. This plan is to turn over one-half of each year's crop until the land is paid for. It has been in use in Canada for some time and not a new venture.

In the project to finance these incoming groups, the land or homes so occupied will be placed under a first mortgage and 15 year bonds bearing interest at the rate of 7% per annum will be issued. The bonds so issued will be divided into two groups—one half to be issued in Prior bonds and will be taken over by some Trust Company, thus arranging for a greater part of the money needed at once. The others called Junior Bonds will be offered to individuals. It is hoped that the greater number so offered will be bought by Mennonites in the United States but they will be open to any one who wishes to invest in such securities.

The advantage gained in selling as many of these special bonds secured by homes opened to the Russian Mennonites lies in the fact that if sufficient bonds can be sold, there will be no limit to the homes opened in Canada for them. However, if there is no financial aid given along this line, the homes will be opened for other groups of immigrants coming to Canada who are sponsored by their friends in a similar way.

The final effect of the work will be to make it possible for more of the Mennonites now in Russia to find new homes in Canada. The general immigration movement will be determined by the ability of the immigrants to repay their passage money and to get settled in a manner to provide for themselves and families.

The situation in Mexico is not very favorable for a large immigration movement. Those who have come are being cared for, but no effort is made to bring more, and, in fact, instructions have been given to defer any movement to that country.

THE SONG OF THE HEART

"This morn I will sing my song," she said,
"While the day is young and fair;
Ere its wearing fret and toil begin,
Or my heart has felt its care.
I will sing my song while the day is young:
I will sing as I ne'er before have sung."

She gayly lifted her fresh young voice,
And its notes were clear and strong;
But the hurrying throng had little thought
For the singer or the song.
She sang while the day was young and fair,
Ere her heart felt aught of its fret and care.

"This eve I must sing again," she said,
"A-weary though I may be;
And passing sweet was the singer's voice,
Though the song rose trèmblingly.
In the day's hard press she had borne her part,
And she sang her song from a chastened heart.

In the hush of the eventide she sang,
As she ne'er before had sung;
And her voice was rich with a tenderness
It lacked when the day was young.
She sang at eve, and the passing throng
Thanked God for the singer and the song.

—Edith Virginia Bradt, in "Songs by the Way."

"UNTO THE LEAST OF THESE"

If I might guess, then guess I would:
Amid the gathered folk,
This gentle Dorcas one day stood,
And heard what Jesus spoke.

She saw the woven, seamless coat,
Half envious for His sake:
"O happy hands," she said, "that wrought,
That honored thing to make."

Her eyes with longing tears grow dim;
She never can come nigh
To work one service poor for Him
For whom she glad would die.

But hark! He speaks a mighty word:
She hearkens now indeed!
"When did we see Thee naked, Lord,
And clothe Thee in Thy need?"

The King shall answer, "Inasmuch
As to my brothers ye
Did it even to the least of such,
Ye did it unto Me."

Home she went and plied the loom,
And Jesus' poor arrayed.
She died; they wept about the room
And showed the coats she made.

—Selected.

"The whole child goes to Sunday school. His physical, social, intellectual and spiritual natures are all present and demand attention."

"Let us keep our eyes on our Commander, and take His strength for ours, and victory is sure."

"Surrender does not build the reservoir of God's abundant life, but it does open the channels through which that life may be 'shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Ghost which is given unto us.'"

THE PRECIOUS PLACE

BITTER and bleak the winter day,
Rocky and steep my mountain way,
Danger ahead on the treacherous trail,
As shadows over the hills prevail;
Trembling, I stop on the path, dismayed,
And stretch out my hands like a child afraid.

Some one comes through the lowering night
Bearing a welcome beacon bright;
Some one firmly grasps my hand,
And leads me through an alien land;
My matchless Comrade, my peerless Friend,
He sees me safe to the journey's end.

Shelter and warmth and rest at last,
Dangers and darkness safely passed;
But as I kneel by the friendly fire
My thoughts to God like the sparks aspire;
And the perilous path was a precious place
Where I met my Savior face to face.

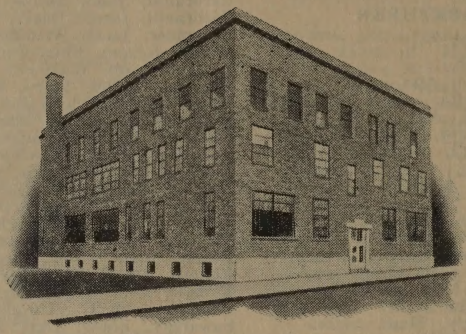
Do You Want To Make

A PROFITABLE INVESTMENT?



The above illustration represents the new building accommodating the plant and offices of the Mennonite Publishing House directed and controlled by the Mennonite Publication Board for the purpose of publishing and disseminating Christian literature.

Many have already taken advantage of the opportunity of making an investment with the institution and eternity alone will reveal the final results of these investments. Every Christian home recognizes the need of good literature. Will you help to supply it? Please note the following forms which are now being offered:

1. Donations. Past records will show that the money given for this cause has increased in value three-fold while it has been possible to supply our homes with religious literature and at the same time make direct contributions to our mission stations, charitable institutions, and educational work. Every home that has been touched by our periodicals has been benefited in one way or another.

2. Annuities. Five and Six Per Cent Cash Annuities are offered to any one wishing to place $100.00 or more. By this method the donor will receive the interest semi-annually in cash during his natural lifetime. The Gospel Herald and Christian Monitor Annuities are also offered through which the equivalent of five per cent is realized during a natural lifetime—a mutual arrangement which is helpful both to the institution and the annuitant.

3. Loans. Since the Board has assumed a certain amount of the obligations in the erecting of the building, this has been met in the form of Loans. Instead of borrowing this money from banks, it has been furnished by individuals throughout the Church. These loans are covered by notes given by the Publishing House under instructions from the Board. There is still an opportunity for others to share in this. We invite further deposits of $100 or more for one or more years at any rate of interest demanded by the depositor not to exceed 5% per annum. Interest is paid annually when due. Notes renew automatically when the interest is paid unless notice demanding payment is given 30 days before due. This phase of our work has been very agreeable both to the House and Board as well as to the investor.

Correspondence solicited.

The Ideal Christian Home

With Its Sacred Sphere and Extensive Mission

By J. S. Shoemaker

The writer has well said in his preface to this book, "The Christian Home is the fundamental source of our national, social, moral, and spiritual well-being. Out of it come the forces that will either strengthen or weaken the next generation and the generations to follow. This being true, it is very essential that from our homes shall go forth influences that are in the truest sense pure, true, ennobling, unselfish and godly."

The book is divided into twelve chapters. The writer aims to give a picture of an ideal home, the fundamental place of marriage in establishing a home, the relation between husband and wife, the husband's domestic commission, the wife's domestic sphere, the parents' relation to their children, the children's relation to their parents, the place servants should hold, the effect of moral and religious influences in the home, things to be discouraged and eliminated and those to be encouraged and established, etc.

Written by men who have long served the Mennonite Church and who are intensely interested in her welfare.

"I have just gone over your manuscript which, in my judgment, promises to be one of the most useful and practical books for the home that I have ever read."—D. H. Bender.

Printed on tinted paper. 176 pages, size 5¼ x 7½ inches. Substantially bound in stiff cloth.

Price, postpaid, $1.25

Mennonite Handbook of Information

By L. J. Heatwole

The well known tract, "A Bit of History," is used as an introduction to this book. It is an index of the general character of the book. It has been sponsored and published through the efforts of the Historical Committee of the Church.

The book is divided into twenty-eight chapters. It deals with facts pertaining to Mennonite General Conference and District Conferences, general Church activities through the General Conference, the first permanent Mennonite colony in America, persistent colonization movements, trials of Mennonites during the Revolution, Mennonites during the Civil War, testing times during the great World War, historical outline of Mennonite literature, biographical sketches of prominent leaders in the Mennonite Church, description of American Mennonite books and periodicals, etc.

"The book herewith handed to the Church presents historical data in such form, we believe, as will be of much value to all readers. It is to be hoped that the searcher after facts relating to the rise and progress of the Mennonite Church in America will find much of interest and value which has never before appeared in print."
—S. F. COFFMAN.

Printed on strong white paper, 187 pages, size 5¼ x 7½ inches. Stiff cloth binding. Price, postpaid, $1.25
